The Registered Disability Savings Plan

What is it?
The Registered Disability Savings Plan (RDSP) is a savings plan introduced by the federal government in 2007. The RDSP is designed to help people with disabilities and their families save money for their long-term financial security.

What Does the RDSP Allow You to Do?
If you open an RDSP, you may be eligible to receive government grants and bonds up to a lifetime maximum of $90,000. Grants and bonds can be received until December 31 of the year you turn 49.

- The Canada Disability Savings Bond (CDSB) provides an annual maximum amount of $1,000, up to a lifetime maximum of $20,000. This bond is income tested (for families with low or modest income). If your family income is below $26,364*, you are eligible for the full bond amount. Families with higher income may be eligible for a partial bond.

- The Canada Disability Savings Grant (CDSG) provides up to $3,500 annually, if your family income is under $90,563*. The amount of the CDSG depends on how much you contribute to your RDSP. Here’s how it works: You get $1,500 on the first $500 of contributions and $2,000 on the next $1,000 contributions. You can receive a lifetime maximum of $70,000. Families with high income are eligible for a reduced grant.

- The maximum you can contribute to your RDSP over your lifetime is $200,000, but the value of an RDSP could be much higher with government contributions and investment savings. You can only make contributions until December 31 of the year you turn 59.

*The legislation and policy may be subject to change. Please check the date on this Help Sheet.
Your Provincial Disability or Income Assistance Benefits

Your provincial disability or income assistance benefits will not be stopped or reduced because of any RDSP savings or withdrawals. This is because the Ministry of Social Development and Poverty Reduction (MSDPR) has introduced regulations that exempt RDSP assets and income.

Requirements and Restrictions

To benefit from an RDSP you must:

• Be eligible for the Disability Tax Credit (DTC) and maintain this eligibility (please see our Help Sheet 14: The Disability Tax Credit for details)
• Have a Social Insurance Number (SIN)
• Be living in Canada when the RDSP is opened
• Be up-to-date with filing your income tax returns
• Be under 50, if you want to claim the CDSG and CDSB (grant and bond)
• Not make any withdrawals for at least 10 years, if you want to keep all of the federal grants and/or bonds that you have received. This is because there is a special rule that says, if you withdraw any money from your savings plan, all or part of the grants and bonds paid into it in the preceding 10 years must be repaid to the government. Also, you may have to repay any CDSGs or CDSBs you have received in the preceding 10 years, if you no longer qualify for the DTC.

How to Establish an RDSP

If you have already qualified for the DTC, you should contact a financial institution that offers the RDSP. Each financial institution has its own forms that you will need to complete to access the RDSP.

You can only have one RDSP at any given time. With your permission, other people can also contribute to your RDSP. Some banks may let you open an RDSP if you have not already qualified for the DTC, but your RDSP will not be official until the DTC is approved.

The Endowment 150 Grant

The Endowment 150 Grant is one-time grant of $150 to help you boost your RDSP savings. It is available to British Columbia residents with disabilities who have income below $25,000 per year or who received income assistance any time since January 1, 2008 (for adults). Children are also eligible and do not have to meet an income test. When you open an RDSP with at least $25, you can apply.

Application forms can be found at: www.rdsp.com.
Taking Money Out of an RDSP

In most cases, you should not make withdrawals for 10-30 years, so you can get the full benefit of your RDSP grants and bonds. When you are ready, there are two kinds of payments that can come out of an RDSP.

- Lifetime Disability Assistance Payments (LDAPs) are annual payments that, once started, must continue until the RDSP is spent. LDAPs can begin before the beneficiary turns 60, but must start when the beneficiary is 60. The LDAP has a maximum annual amount which is set by a legislated formula, based on the value of the plan and life expectancy of the beneficiary.

- Disability Assistance Payments (DAPs) are one-time payments from the RDSP that can be requested at any time. However, talk to your bank about their policies on DAP payments. Each bank is permitted to have their own rules or restrictions on these payments.

Repayment Rules

If any money is taken out of an RDSP, you have to repay the federal government all or part of the grants and bonds put into your RDSP in the previous 10 years.

Financial Institutions Offering the RDSP

Most financial institutions are currently offering RDSPs, including the following:

- Bank of Montreal (BMO)
- Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce (CIBC)
- Central 1 Credit Union
- Community Savings Credit Union
- Desjardins Trust Inc.
- Envision Investment Services Ltd.
- Investors Group Trust Co. Ltd.
- Mackenzie Financial Corporation
- Royal Bank of Canada (RBC)
- Scotia Bank
- TD Canada Trust
- Vancity Credit Union.

NOTE: Banks’ RDSP policies vary. For example, they may have different restrictions on when you can make withdrawals from an RDSP. Be sure to ask your bank about these policies, before you set up an RDSP.
RDSP: Pros and cons

Pros

• The RDSP provides generous grants and bonds from the federal government, and is an excellent savings opportunity for many people with disabilities.

• For people on income assistance, the provincial government has made RDSP assets and withdrawals exempt. This means that people can save and use this money without having their monthly income assistance affected.

• For people who get provincial disability benefits and receive lump-sum payments (such as an ICBC settlement), the RDSP is a practical alternative to a trust, to exempt the asset.

• The RDSP can provide long-term financial security.

Cons

• The older you are, the fewer financial incentives you will have to start an RDSP. For example, if you are over 49, you cannot qualify for the federal grants and bonds going forward.

• You must meet a relatively strict definition of disability to qualify for the DTC. If you do qualify, but lose your eligibility at a later time, you may have to close your RDSP. However, an RDSP may remain open, if you meet certain criteria. Please see, If You Are No Longer Eligible for the DTC in this Help Sheet.

• The Repayment Rules mean that you have to pay back all or part of the grants and bonds you have received in the past 10 years, when you withdraw any amount of money from the RDSP.

Carry Forward and Rollover Provisions

The Carry Forward provision allows people who may not be able to contribute regularly to their RDSP to claim unused grant and bond entitlements for a 10-year period (starting from 2008, when the RDSP first became available). The annual maximum for unused grants is $10,500, for unused bonds it is $11,000.

The Rollover provision allows the Registered Retirement Savings Plan (RRSP), Registered Retirement Income Fund (RRIF) or Registered Pension Plan (RPP) of a deceased family member to be rolled over into the RDSP of a dependent child or grandchild.

Proportional Repayment Rule

If grant and bond payments have been made to your RDSP in the last 10 years, and you withdraw money from it, you may have to pay back a portion of the grants and bonds you received. Under the Proportional Repayment Rule, for every $1 withdrawn from an RDSP, $3 of any grants or bonds received in the past 10 years must be repaid.
If You Are No Longer Eligible for the DTC

If you lost DTC eligibility on or after March 19, 2019, you will no longer be required to close your RDSP. However, the plan cannot receive new contributions, grants, and bonds for the period you are ineligible. It is important to re-apply for the DTC if you would like to make and receive new contributions into your RDSP. If you cease to be ineligible, withdrawals from your RDSP are subject to the proportional payment rule. The amount you have to pay back will gradually lessen every year, starting with the year you turn 51.
